“ Dear Mom,

This is so incredibly difficult to write. For as far back as I can remember, I have always tried to be your rock; the person who would always be there to protect you. I've tried to be strong during times like these, focusing on making sure everyone else is okay, but I am struggling this time. I was ready to help you fight through this battle, no matter the result, knowing we'd do this as a family. I was NOT ready to lose you this quickly.

I am grateful that we got to enjoy the holidays together, as it created memories that we all will cherish forever. I am proud of you for fighting through the pain, putting on a smile and pretending like everything was fine, even though it was not. The holidays will not be the same without you here.

A lot of the reasons I am the person who I am today, was because of you and I never got to tell you that.

Words cannot express how much I am going to miss you.

I am going to miss having you come over to hang out and eat dinner.

I am going to miss you texting me, asking what time the Cubs play.

I am going to miss giving you a hug and telling you that I love you.

It's so hard to think about the future and realize that you aren't here to be part of it all.

As sad as I am, I am happy that you are no longer in pain and that you are at peace.

I know you'll always be looking down on us and that Mason has a new Guardian Angel protecting him.

I know you are not alone up there and have Dad, Matt, and Grandma with you. I'm sure Buster and Layla were waiting for you as well.

Saying "Goodbye" has been very hard for me, so I am just going to say I LOVE YOU and that I MISS YOU.

Love Always,

Brian
