“ George was the cool cousin. When we were kids, he would organize the rest of us for games and all sorts of adventures around Grandma Hattie’s expansive yard and gardens—back long before houses were built where the grape arbor once stood when all we had to do was wander around and pick currant berries off the bushes, fruit off trees, and found great places for games of Hide ‘n Seek. Oftentimes, he was ably assisted by my late brother Roger while we girls followed behind. Then, when he got older, he was the cousin with the fabulous car, tall, handsome looks, and really great hair. What I most wondered back then was how much time he actually spent on that pompadour! I miss those carefree times and I will miss my cousin, my friend always.
