“ I met Geri just after her 99th Birthday. I was visiting her as a Journeycare (hospice) volunteer to provide her with companionship. We quickly became friends. She entertained me with memories of her life from the 1920s to the current day. Even though she worked hard throughout her life in various occupations, her recollections were always amazingly upbeat and positive. She possessed a zest for life and an ability to cherish the little moments that others might forget. I was impressed with her desire to help others as well. She entertained the elderly in nursing homes for years as a member of a kitchen band and as a singer. And she also enacted the part of Mrs. Santa Claus for youngsters in the area. She was a loving mother, grandmother, and lived to be a great great grandmother!
