“ Glen.....you were/are a great man. There are memories of things you taught me at an early age that still resonate with me today. You had a wry sense of humor that I always got a kick out of. It was a pleasure to even know you. My only wish that will never come to fruition now is that I wanted to have conversations with you. May God watch over your lovely wife and your entire family. Rest in Peace Glen.

“ From a very young age Chris looked up to his big brother Glen. Chris fondly remembers the two of them hiking back to the river on the farm as young boys to fish or just play. Like a big brother should, Glen kept an eye out for Chris. As young men they bought their first motorcycles and went wandering the countryside together. After Chris got out of the Army, Glen even let Chris move in for a while. Over the ensuing decades the two would work together at numerous jobs, even commuting to the city together. They would go on to raise large families, even matching kids one-for-one – Chris’s five boys to Glen’s five girls. They arranged picnics, BBQ’s, and even a few vacations to spend time with each other’s families. Chris dearly loves each of his brothers and his little sister, but only Glen can be called his lifelong and best friend.

Unfortunately, Chris’s health is poor and cannot travel to Illinois to attend the services of his best friend. Moreover, his short-term memory problems may even prevent him from remembering the passing of his big brother. However, Chris can still recall the memories of a 75-year friendship with Glen and these memories make him smile every time.

Uncle Glen will be missed by each of Chris’s son’s and their families, but there’s no doubt that his friendship is most sorely missed by his little brother.

“ I can't tell you how much Glen mean to his brother Chris. My dad, Chris, loved him deeply. As my "Uncle Glen", I enjoyed our trips to the south side of Chicago for family visits. My Uncle and Aunt were always friendly and kind. I'll certainly miss his dry wit and unique voice when he called out to me, "Hey....Tommy...". I'll never forget that...

“ *"May the road rise up to meet you.
May the wind be always at your back.
May the sun shine warm upon your face;
the rains fall soft upon your fields and until we meet again, may God hold you in the palm of His hand."*
