“ Well where do i begin! Things might not have always been great but we were never hungry or without a roof over our heads. In the summer time growing up he barbecued what I called Blackened chicken (for those of you who ever came to the house on Sherwin you known what I am talking about). Rupert was unique to say the least. I remember him working many long hours doing messenger service, even in the bitter cold. He was very frugal, but frugality is not a bad thing in his case. His frugality made him proud to say " You know how long i have had my jacket" even though it was ripped he was proud to have his jacket ,shoes,etc. which were at older than me at times .Thanks for the life lessons RIP.
